

Remember Medieval Drama?

Adam "Jesus" Clever takes Direction from Emily "I'm God Here" Schrum (Image Credit: Fee and Miller 2010)

"I've got a Medieval script; you've got some silly costumes: Let's put on a show!"

Well, spring is in the air, summer is just around the corner, and that time has come again!

The translation is finished, the show is cast, and sounds of late-night rehearsals are already disturbing the slumber of innocent first-year students. Now the t-shirts have arrived and the costumes and props groups are rushing about trying to find the perfect materials on the cheap. Sound familiar?

Then come back and join us for this year's Medieval Drama production:

JUDGMENT IS GOOD

For 2010 we return to a favorite hilarious theme: Memento mori! The Wakefield Last Judgment is a play about serious issues concerning the end of the world and the punishment of sin, but with a twist: It contrasts an angry and awesome Christ the Judge with hilarious and disgusting devils, tempering serious theology with a spoonful of the Comedy of Evil. What could make this vision speak to modern audiences? Why ZOMBIES, of course! And after the recent financial melt-down, nothin's scarier than Solid Gold Dancin' Zombie Bankers! Our 2010 production is a swirlin' smoke, shimmerin' skirt-work, glitter-rich apocalyptic vision of Judgment like you've never seen before! Book your tickets now!

Come back to see our 2010 Solid Gold Zombie Dancers shake some glitter during the Thriller number...hopefully, no limbs will shake loose.... Don't miss the campus-wide performance on April 30th, 2010 at 4:00 PM behind Breidenbaugh Hall on the campus of Gettysburg College! There will be a second performance the next day at the same time as part of Celebration 2010! Downpour location: Christ Chapel. All are welcome!

"Get thee to Hell, Satan!" 2010's Zombie Apocalypse version of the Wakefield "Last Judgment" features Christ the Judge in a Triumphant Throw-down with Satan! (Image Credit: Fee and Miller 2010)

Check out Medieval Drama updates Check out Medieval Drama updates here.