

* How do Leacock and Ortner answer the question of why women are so widely subordinated?

* Which earlier theorists do they draw on to construct their ideas?

* How might both Leacock and Ortner be considered a gender constructionist (this is another way of saying that gender identity is culturally determined)