COLORADO

Wayne Ewing ’57 – Journalist, The Wet Mountain Tribune (Westcliffe/Silver Cliff, CO)
Organization: The Tribune is in its 133rd year, a weekly fixture here; our award winning writing focuses on our distinctive niche—local, community oriented news. It’s not all bake sales and smiley faces; we confront controversial issues in the community, and actually scooped, last September, Colorado's largest illegal marijuana grow bust in history, an eight state, multi-agency operation that broke up a multi-million dollar Cuban cartel. And we do this from offices in a 125 year old house, complete with pot-bellied stove—and up to date technology...A free, teaser version of our weekly is available at www.wetmountaintribune.com
Externship: An extern interested in how isolated, rural communities remain alive and well with a vibrant and stimulating life, economically, politically, creatively, religiously (I'm active with historic St. Luke's Episcopal Mission here), and how the news coverage of this life remains still a bulwark of journalism at the local level would be quite engaged here. An extern exploring reportorial writing might be extensively engaged in covering, for example, the Westcliffe Center for the Performing Arts Shakespeare Festival (I'm cast as Kent in this year's King Lear production), or our regionally noted Blue Grass Festival...and so on. We'd make certain the student had ample opportunity to hike or horseback or mountain bike in the Sangres...the Rainbow Trail extends the entire length of the range.
Date Availability: TBD June or July during Shakespeare Festival or Bluegrass Festival
